

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

and this not merely in those matters in which special efforts have been made to bring about uniformity in legislation.

The unity of the country in social and business affairs makes it necessary that business men as well as lawyers having anything more than a local practice, should be able readily to inform themselves of the laws of many states on a great number of subjects. There is already a tendency to uniformity of classification in the preparation of digests and this tendency should be stimulated by the approval by this Association and accelerated by the conscious and well-directed efforts of editors and publishers and legislative commissions. Effective action on these matters cannot be taken without co-operation among the several states, and if the Association approves of and is desirous of taking effective measures for retarding the increase of the volume of the reports and of bringing about uniformity of classification and plan in the digests of the statutes of the several states, your committee would recommend that a special committee be appointed for the purpose consisting of one member of each state.

The committee offers the following resolutions:

1. That the increasing volume of the reported cases is a burden for which some relief must be found both in the selection of the opinions that are reported and in greater brevity in the opinions themselves.
2. That it is desirable that there be substantial uniformity of plan and classification in digests of the statutes of the various states.
3. That a committee be appointed consisting of one member from each state to consider these matters, and to confer with members of the Bar and with judges and reporters and to take such action as they may think best to bring about the desired results.

---

IN VACATION.

---

Retired.—Among the Monday morning culprits haled before a Baltimore police magistrate was a darkey with no visible means of support.

"What occupation have you here in Baltimore?" asked His Honor.

"Well, jedge," said the darkey, "I aint doin' much at present—jest circulatin' round, suh."

His Honor turned to the clerk of the court and said:

"Please enter the fact that this gentleman has been retired from circulation for sixty days."—The Green Bag.